

Ivan A. Aleshkovskiy

Ivan Aleshkovskiy, Ph.D. (Economics), is Associate Professor, Deputy Dean Faculty of Global Studies Lomonosov Moscow State University, Moscow, Russia.

In 2004 he graduated with honors from the Faculty of Economics of the Lomonosov Moscow State University. In 2006 he defended with honors his master's thesis. In 2007 he was awarded the degree of PhD in Economics ("Determinants of Internal Migration in the Russian Federation"). He hold an internship at the University of Kaiserslautern, University of Mainz, J.W. Goethe University Frankfurt (Germany).

His research interests focus on population studies, international migration, migration policy, urbanization, globalization. He is the author and co-author of about 180 publications. The main of them: Global Studies. Encyclopedic Dictionary (New York, 2014); Nonlinear Dynamics of Global Processes (Moscow, 2014, co-authored); City in the Context of Global Processes (Moscow, 2011, co-authored); International Migration and HIV in Russia (Moscow, 2008, co-authored); Internal Migration in Russia (Moscow, 2007); Determinants of Internal Migration (Moscow, 2005); Urban Economics (Moscow, 2005, co-authored). Ivan Aleshkovskiy is a Member of the Executive Committee of the International Consortium "Global Studies"; Member of Editorial Board of the scientific journal "Global studies and Geopolitics Bulletin"; Member of the Academic Council of the Faculty of Global Studies Lomonosov Moscow State University; Member of the Russian Council of Youth Intellectual Competitions.