

2016 ALAP & ABEP Congress

The VII Congress of the Latin American Population Association (ALAP) and the XX Congress of the Brazilian Population Association (ABEP) will be held at Bourbon Cataratas Convention in Foz do Iguacu, Brazil, from 17 to 22 October 2016. The central topic this year is “Unity and diversity of demographic processes: political challenges for Latin America and the Caribbean in an international perspective”. The event received 755 papers from all continent and abroad. Workshops and side meetings will be organized on mobility and climate change, gender and care policies, mortality databases, projections, longitudinal data and big data. Detailed information is available on the 2016 ALAP & ABEP Congress website (Spanish and Portuguese only).

Publications

Familias Históricas: Interpelaciones desde perspectivas Iberoamericanas a través de los casos de Argentina, Brasil, Costa Rica, Paraguay y Uruguay, Oikos/Unisinos/ALAP, 2016.

Coordinated by:

Mónica Ghirardi, National University of Cordoba (Argentina)

Ana Silvia Volpi Scott, State University of Campinas (Brazil)

ISBN 978-85-7843-569-1

The most recent publication of the Research Series of ALAP (Serie Investigaciones) offers an explicative vision about the relationship between demographic, cultural and social processes that have historically affected the Iberoamerican family systems. The book is divided in two parts. The first one considers kinship, household constitution, and gender and generation aspects in Argentina, Brazil, Costa Rica, Paraguay, Spain and Uruguay in 17th and 20th centuries. The second part is devoted to marriage, family and kinship in the slavery context in the 18th and 19th centuries.

Revista Latinoamericana de Población \(RELAP\)

The Revista Latinoamericana de Población (RELAP) is an open access peer-reviewed journal published by Latin American Population Association (ALAP) since 2007. The focus is essays, articles and revisions about population studies. A new number is edited each semester and are considered articles in Spanish, Portuguese or English.

More Information: RELAP

E-mail: alap.revista@alapop.org